NDP leader Dave Barrett has postponed announcement of his future plans for at least another three days.

The former premier was expected to say to-day whether he planned to let an NDP MLA step down in favor of him running in a byelection or down as party leader.

But Barrett has apparently not made up his mind and said he would have nothing to say publicly until at least Friday.

Deficit Budgeting in Ont.

TORONTO — When a government gets to be as big (expenditures of over $11.3 billions this fiscal year) and as fat (33 years in power come August) as the Conservative government of Ontario, its biggest problem is, ironically, how to save money

This is because the politicians who create spending juggernauts are rarely the ones who can stop them. To cut significant millions from their programs requires the admission of more past mistakes than political pride will allow.

The Davis government, for example, has been outspending its revenues at a fantastic rate every year since it took over the administration of the province in 1970. Its deficit this fiscal year will be about $2 billion. But it has created so many sacred cow programs in the process that it doesn't know where to wield the pruning

Such a government really has only two options open to it. It can slash mindlessly about in all directions, on the principle of the least government the better, as was proposed by the special program review committee of last November—a commit-tee of friendly civil servants and private itizens whose creation, a few months before, was a tacit admission that the government was stymied.

Showboating

Or it can put on a great showboating exercise of saving money, hoping the good voters will be mesmerized into thinking a penny is a pound.

Not surprisingly the Davis government decided to showboat, and a marvellous show it has been ever since Treasurer Darcy KcKeough rose in the legislature on program designed to hold spending in the coming fiscal year to a growth rate of 10 be legislative changes, he has announced, per cent over the current year. That's a pretty good entrance right to work when work is available. per cent in view of his own estimate that per cent in current dollars. However, there

Health Minister Frank Miller announced he has a little list of hospitals which he would be visiting in the course of time with closure notices in order to cut $50 million from his budget from next budget would still be $300 million higher than this year got overlooked.

Community and Social Service Minister James Taylor also announced he had some travelling to do in order to convince the municipal welfare departments. Children's Aid Societies, the homes for the aged and other agencies that they must live within a 5.5 per cent increase in provincial assistance for 1976.

WILLIAM DAVIS

Taylor has now completed this tour to deny welfare to applicants who refuse there: "constraint" means spending 10 per cent more than you've been spending too automatically qualify for welfare. Senior care benefit under medicare may have to the provincial economy will grow only 5.5 take a needs test. Inmates of the homes per cent in real terms and eight to nine for the aged who don't use their $43-amonth "comfort" allowance may have it taken away. And so on. All this, of course, is great stuff politically and more than enough to satisfy the taxpayers' cry for action. Miller, indeed, has become something of a hero as he doggedly goes about, accompanied by his police bodyguard and facing hostile local crowds, to close a small hospital here and a small hospital there. Taylor could not conceal his relish as he enumerated his discoveries on how to tighten up the welfare system.

Alle Contract

The only trouble is that it is not going to save much money — nothing like the kind of money that has to be saved and nothing like the amount that could be saved if the government axed some of its sacred cows

Health expenditures, for example, are out of sight not because there may be some small, unneeded hospitals about but because the government, from the start of medicare, has surrendered almost total control and direction of the health delivery system to the medical profession. As long as this sacred cow policy continues, there will be no substantial cutbacks on the health budget.

timate is at least 2.2 per cent in a budget of $140 millions) can undoubtedly be saved if the current principle of no work, no welfare is tightened up.

Sacred Cows

But a lot more could be saved if the government administration of welfare was simplified, so that we do not have a municipal administration, a provincial administration for temporary welfare, a provincial administration for permanent velfare, and Heaven knows what else. According to Premier Davis, of course there are no sacred cows — the constraint program is an "across-the board" program without regard to the political yardage that might be gained by cutting here and sparing there.

That isn't quite how Treasurer McKeough told it last Dec. 11. The government had its priorities, McKeough said, and they included a 15 per cent increase in provincial aid to higher education in order to "accommodate" the rapid increase in university enrolments, and a 15.1 per cent increase in provincial expenditures on law enforcement "in recognition of the de mands from Ontario's residents for im proved service in the area of law and crease in university enrolment had to be 'accommodated, or just how more policemen, courts, and crown attorneys would produce more law and order. There me Conservative sacred cows one doesn't question.

TOM WICKER

Hayden Has New-Old Ideas

paraplegics, deaf, mute and blind persons met here last week at the Rehabilitation Conference of Southern California to dis cuss such things as how to make "the socalled normals" realize the need for "barrier-free" housing and transportation, or an education system that would not view the retarded as fit only to be janitors and bus boys. To Tom Havden, the 35-year-old radical leader of the 1960s who is running in the California Democratic primary for nomination to a seat in the U.S. senate, the rehabilitation conference was only one more example of a familiar story.

The history of the last 15 years," he said, while a woman standing by the podium translated his words into fingerlanguage for the deaf. "is the history of disadvantaged groups struggling for their

Vested Interests

Hayden was linking the struggle of the handicapped — about 22 million persons in the United States — to those of minorities, women, the peace movement. He pointed out, for example, that California received $66 million in federal funds for rehabilitation services — while defence contracts in Los Angeles County alone totalled $4.4 bil-

But in another sense, Hayden was defining his own campaign against incumbent Senator John V. Tunney. It is a campaign built on the unradical but untried idea of extending democracy, rather than overthrowing it or substituting some other

The problem is not so much with the laws, Hayden told the rehabilitation con-ference, but that the government and other institutions are failing to observe or enforce the laws.

Even laws designed to help the handicapped, he said, are not being fully implemented because of "deep existing problems of vested interests that are trying to prevent the carrying out of those in order to guard or increase

Again and again, Hayden returns to that theme as he stumps California in an has become a fief of the corporations, he insists — of the oil companies, the power companies, the defence contractors, the multinationals, the automobile industry and Americans must struggle for their rights against corporate dominance. He denounced, for example, Tunney's rejection of the Kennedy-Corman health security bill as too expensive.

"It's not as expensive as deregulation of the price of natural gas," Hayden argues. "It's not as expensive as some of these bombers (Tunney) is in favor of."

He is caustically critical, too, of companies heavily involved in California nuclear power development — Bechtel, Westinghouse, Southern California Edison claiming that they also are pouring thousands of dollars into opposition to a nuclear safeguard initiative, which is on

"I don't think we can trust the nuclear power companies to make the decisions concerning nuclear power when they've got a profit interest in it," he says. take advantage of tax incentives, "leaving unemployment here while exploiting cheap labor abroad and fixing prices at home." The American people are not only asked "to accept the idea that in this richest of societies we should accept more and more unemployment and higher and higher prices." but are the victims of a wasteful government that annually pours $38 billion in federal funds into California - with 70 per cent going to defence and

Not Radical

Hayden has an array of specific remedies — full-scale development of solar energy, for example, and eliminating tax incentives for corporations to move their operations abroad that fills a 286-page book of typewritten pages. Basically, however, he seems to be making two general proposals: One is for a fundamental revision of priorities, away from the interests of big corporations allied with big government to more productive and humanistic enterprises. Rebuilding the railway system, he argues, would produce more jobs per dollar invested and more social benefits than the same amount invested in "Pentagon contracts;" agriculture, for another example, could gainfully employ millions driven from the land and to the welfare rolls by corporate farms.

Taking his cue from Ralph Nader of whom he speaks with reverence, Hayden would re-order priorities primarily through an extended democracy. He would give elected consumer and worker representatives seats on corporation boards and greater control over government agencies and financial institutions. He would encourage co-operatives and publically owned corporations, and direct government spending toward job-creating activities in housing, transporation and Radical? Most of it isn't even new. But little of Tom Hayden's program has really been tried, either, and maybe it just might be true — as he says — that "if you want to bring down interest rates, put some consumers on the Federal Reserve.

Pay As You Go

For all those who are screaming that ICBC is a rip-off, I would like to say that I agree with them, ICBC has been the biggest rip-off B.C. has ever seen, since the very first day it came into being. The responsible, accident-free, taxpaying citizens of this province have been ripped-off by the NDP government for three years, by being forced to have their tax dollars used to pay the expenses of those irresponsible people who say "drink, drive and be merry, for tomorrow somebody

'So, ha, ha, they find they have to pay 400, and they don't like it. We don't like it either, but we know it has to be done. No government can keep on spending more than it takes in. Although many women's groups throughout the province have pressed for 24-hour day care to accommodate parents on shift work, no 24-hour services are available under the department of human resources. Therefore, it would be impossible to use them in order to go on a holiday We would also like to see drop-off centres to accommodate part-time students and workers, but so far, none exist. Since operating costs are fixed, parents must guarantee full-time use of the facilities. They can't be used for the occasional

Shopping carts all have one defective wheel which makes them impossible to steer straight. Today's "specials" include dented cans of boiled turnip, parts of the cow you never knew it had, and a brand of ketchup your kids won't eat on a bet. Before you get the chicken checked through, it leaks all over your groceries and down the front of your trousers, causing all sorts of nasty stories to start. It's possible to get whiplash if rear-ended by a 4-year-old pushing his mother's

There is no dignified way for a woman in a skirt to lean over the milk bin and pick up a three-quart jug of 2 per cent. When shopping for a family of five, it's only possible to get pork chops in packages

Large bags of potatoes are invariably on the supermarket floor and can be lifted

Supermarkets place their frozen foods at the most distant point in the store so that by the time you get to the checkout ners or hear it swishing in the can.

At the fruit counter, there is one rule: If you can reach it, don't take it. (A veteran shopper wouldn't consider taking home a grapefruit unless he or she dug it out from the bottom of the display, and had to get a boost to grasp it.)

Every supermarket has at least one ai sle where some one has dropped a bottle (economy size) of salad dressing

The most friendly clerks in the super-market are in the fruit section while the most abrupt tend to be in the meat division, possibly because the first words expressed by most customers when they look at the price tag on a package of steaks is, "They've got to be kidding."

Novice shoppers can be spotted trying to figure out whether it's better to buy a five-pound box of washday miracle for $2.07 and get a bonus towel, another brand not advertised on TV but only $1.65 with a china figurine inside, or let the entire family go dirty for the week.

against the failure of a company to carry out its ruling. The crucial second half of the union strategy required that companies which had agreed to over-the-guidelines settle-ments ignore roll-back orders and pay the higher wages. When New Brunswick's Irving Pulp and Paper Company began paying its workers the 23.8 per cent contract increase rather than the 14 per cent approved by the AIB, it became the first test of both the union strategy and the administrator's response.

The $125,000 penalty levied against it by administrator Donald Tansley last week seems certain to have been the two strategy. That demonstra-tion of so-called rough justice with a sledgehammer being used in place of a judicial gavel will unquestionably dissuade other companies which might have had the temerity to ignore AIB rulings. such one-sided battle can labor afford to lose? As it sees it, the answer may be that it can't ever afford to throw in the years at that. Last week's Canadian Labor Congress response to the Irving ruling is as significant for what it doesn't say as what it does.

In a statement on behalf of the Congress' executive com-mittee, CLC president Joe Morris announced that the decision would be challenged in court on constitutional grounds. He said the CLC would "immediately review its relationship with the federal government in all areas, and promised a mass demonstra tion on Parliament Hill next month when the labor organization makes its annual submission to government. There was no reference to the ''political strike' threatened by some key union leaders — including steelworkers chief Willia

Mahoney — before the executive committee met. The idea of a general strike over a political issue has long been anathemá to Canada's union leadership. It is the ultimate weapon — that could as easily backfire as hit its intended target.

For the moment it will evidently remain in the closet. The next round of the controls struggle will be fought mainly in the courts, though it may representatives from the various government-appointed bodies on which they now sit.

$500,000 Guatemala Target Exceeded

TORONTO (CP) - The Canadian Red Cross Society has passed its target of $500,000 for aid to Guatemalan earthquake victims, J. G. M. Clark, executive committee chairman, says.

Clark said in a statement that contributions have exceeded $520,000.

The toll of casualties in the Central American republic was close to 22,000 dead, 65,000 injured and more than a million homeless.

Meanwhile, a Canadian who has returned from Guatemala has appealed for help for two-Canadian nuns and a priest in their effirts to care for 35,000 victims in one area.

Helke Ferrie of Burlington, Ont., president of the Kuan-Yin Foundation, said in a tele-phone interview from San Francisco she was shocked to hear the Canadian govern-ment had said everything was under control in Guatemala.

"The situation is desper-ate," she said. "Please ask Canadians to help. We need a mobile hospital, drugs, tools and anti-biotics.

Mrs. Ferrie, wife of Burlington surgeon Robert Ferrie, said she flew across hundreds of miles of devastation before locating the three Canadians.

Metric highway sign near Vernon

Speed Limit's 80

Times Staff

Fourth of Six Parts Most drivers already go 50

The present speed limit is 48 kilometers per hour.

In September, 1977, when all highway and road signs go metric, legislation is likely to be introduced to raise the city limit to 50 km h for course. limit to 50 km-h for conve-nience. Highway speed limits will continue to be 80 km-h on Vancouver Island, 88 km-h on the mainland. Before the energy trisis, the common high-way speed limit was 96 km-n. And despite all this, many people drive 100 km-h regular-ly on the highways.

ly on the highways.

The highway metric conversion is really very easy . . . 50 in town, 80 on the highway. The only difficult part is learning to say it.

The sign 50 km-h is 50 kilometers per hour. Kilometer is pronounced like it was two words, kilo meter. They should call in one kilo. That's pronounced as in kill. One kilo.

Kilometer (kilo meter) is a key word in the new language. For example, it is 80 kilometers from Victoria to Ladysmith. It takes an hour. If you get there in less than one hour you've been fudging on the seed limit which is 80. on the speed limit which is 80

It's about 50 kilometers out to Sooke. It's a winding road and when traffic is heavy it can take almost an hour.
That's because the car is only going 50 km-h or slightly above the downtown speed

The highway conversion is about the easiest there is — just 50 and 80. But something will have to be done about kil-ometer. Maybe they should call them kay-ems (KMs).

Starting in April of 'this year all wind speeds will be given in KMs per hour. It's easy to convert from car speed to wind speed.

If the wind is,50 km-h that's not too bad. It's a little too brisk to be walking into with comfort and the umbrella will blow about but inside a car it is calm.

However, a wind of 80 km-h is no fun. That's as fast as your car on the highway. It's called a gale and it's enough to bring down some TV antennas and break twigs off trees. Cars are buffeted about but can manage to keep a fairly stright course. It is dangerous stright course. It is dangerous to be on the water when winds are at gale force at 80 km-h. Anything over 90 km-h is considered a major storm and trees can be uprooted.

Most summer days the winds will be light at 20 or less. That's really just a breeze, the suggestion of motion in the air. A very light Tomorrow flag might move and some came Golfo. leaves would rustle.

A moderate wind would be 21 to 40 km-h, enough to blow loose paper and to bring wavelets to a crest.

Under 20 is a breeze, under 40 is endured in comfort. When it gets to be 50 you might prefer to drive rather than walk. If it gets to 80 you wight the companion of the companio might prefer to stay indoors. If it's 90 or more it's a storm that likely will cause damage.

Really 50 and 80 are the be learned. Along with that word: kilometer.

Changes Okay ew kind of car.

There's never been a Dodge like this before.

Dodge Aspen has been designed with today's driving conditions in mind. Aspen is a compact ... the compact for big-car drivers. That means we've gone to great lengths to make sure that Aspen delivers more room, comfort and luxury than any ordinary compact. To do it we had to come up with a new kind of car.

Big-car comfort.

One thing that big car drivers look for is comfort. And that means having lots of room to stretch out in. Aspen comes through with more legroom and headroom than most full-size North American cars. And to get at all that roominess, Aspen gives you extra-wide doors for easy

Aspen delivers big-car comfort in other ways, too. For instance, the interior trim is superb. And special attention has been paid to sound insulation. So your new Aspen will be big-car

Big-car ride.

Here's another way Dodge Aspen treats you to the comforts of big cars. We designed Aspen's suspension system to duplicate the feel, vibra-tion isolation, noise reduction and smoothness of a full-size car. The fact that we succeeded is something you'll discover yourself when you take one for a test drive.

Big-car options.

Compact cars used to have a pretty compact option list. Not so with Aspen. Here's just a taste of what you can order to make your new Aspen yours alone:

- air conditioning • six-way power seats • power windows • power door locks • AM/FM Multiplex stereo radio with full four-speaker stereo sound
- automatic speed control (with Torqueflite automatic) • sun roof (Sedans and Coupes)
- electric heated rear window • tilt steering wheel available with power steering and automatic

The list goes on and on. Our point is, if you want to personalize your new Aspen, you'll find the wide choice you've come to expect from

While we're very proud of all our new Aspen models, we're even more pleased to point out that for the first time in Canada, Dodge is making two compact Station Wagon models available. It's just another reason we call Aspen the compact for big-car drivers.

McLeod: 'If That's Our Teaching, We're Sick'

The weekend in review and what else? A hockey brawl to end all hockey brawls in Saskatoon last Friday night. Hopefully, that is. At least the Saskatoon city fathers put a cap on more of the same for the time being. They simply ordered the arona padlocked and refused to let the next scheduled game between the Saskatoon Blades and Victoria Cougars go

It was a wise move in the aftermath of the full-scale hostility on the ice. It's difficult to believe but it took 50 minutes before order was restored. That's hockey?

It is not the point, nor the purpose here, to say who was, or who wasn't, at fault. Even people who were there hadn't arrived at that decision when this was written. But what is the point is the question raised by Saskatoon Blade coach.

the point is the question raised by Saskatoon Blade coach Jackie McLeod.

McLeod has been around hockey long enough to have seen almost everything in the way of fighting, scratching, brawling and even dirty play, and he probably spoke for most hockey observers when he said:

"It makes me sick. The game is not worth it. If that's the way we teach the game of hockey, we're sick."

That's quite an admission from a man of McLeod's stature.

He fien suggested that the fans boycott the game Sunday, saying "they deserve better than this." Of course, the fans never got that chance, Saskatoon city council took care, of that. And the move probably prevented another brawl because, with three Saskatoon players injured and hospitalized, it is only natural to assume that the Cougars weren't the most popular group in town. And, according to one report, one mostle three was unging the fans to go to the game and one media type was urging the fans to go to the game and "taste some Cougar blood." If true, it was an open invitation to attend a riot, and be a part of it. And that's hockey? But that apparently was the prime reason the Saskatovan City Council acted the way it

Hockey is a violent sport. There's no denying that, But there is no need for it to become vicious. Former Canuck coach Hal Laycoe once put it this way: "There's nothing wrong with a punch in the nose. It's just a part of the growing up of a hockey player."

But that doesn't excuse coaches, or managers, who call on the animalistic tendencies of some of their players to play the other team but. Not that this the other team hurt. Not that this was the case in Saskatoon, but it has happened, especially elsewhere, and all too often.

The Saskatoon story isn't an isolated case. It's just that it was the latest and the biggest riot of the season, that's all. By all accounts, when Tim Williams'-stick caught the eye of the Saskatoon player, injuring him seriously, it was firictly an accident. It nonetheless precipitated the brawl that followed. But it could be that the game already was out of hand.

From this distance, it's hard to tell, but tempers obviously were at a fever pitch.

But that's not new. Hardly a week passes without a similar incident, the threat of a legal charge, suspensions and fines, then perhaps a calm for a few days, followed by another purch-up. It's been always thus. And yes, that's hockey, and even in other leagues too.

The game will go on. There's no doubt about that. But if there's an answer to the victousness that keeps rearing its, ugly head, nobody has found it — except perhaps the Saskatoon. City Council. And maybe McLeod wasn't far off base when he said: "If that's the way we're teaching the game, we're sick!"

F. He was placing the blame on all coaches. The question now is: how many will listen?

In a later development, Monday, maybe one did. Cougar coach Pat Ginnell, while denying pressure, announced his resignation as Cougar coach. The timing may have been significant. It came as Ginnell was attending a meeting of WCHL governors.

It is no secret that in the past Ginnell-coached teams have often been accused of using intimidating tactics. But he is no more guilty in this regard than some other coaches in the league. Still he feels he may be at fault, conceding that perhaps much of the violence could be his doing; and by resigning he is doing the right thing.

"If I am responsible for violence in hockey, I don't want to be a part of it," he declared.

Knowing his deep reverence for the game and his players, that took a lot of doing on Ginnell's part, probably much more than the average fan will ever realize. Because even though the others will learn from this lesson

And if the act does get cleaned up.

And southern Island fishermen should be pleased to learn that the B.C. Salmon Derby will have some new areas this year. To be specific, derby officials have bowed to requests to open up the Becher Bay and Pedder Bay waters. Chairman Jim Murray, in making the announcement, said it is the aim of derby officials to make the contest easily accessible to as many fishermen as possible. The Cowichan Bay area also has been extended to the south-east, touching the Saanich Peninsula, in an effort to make the derby more available to Including land used for bases, plant equipment ranging from hangars to office and other real and personal property gives the pantagon's holdings a total value of $237 billion as of June 30, 1975. billion as of June 30, 1975. This is $9.4 billion more than the previous fiscal year.

SECOND GUESSING

EQUAL RIGHTS

After weeks of lobbying with gifts of homemade cookies and jam and arguing that American womanhood was at stake, opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment have won a major victory here toward. a major victory here toward blocking national ratification.

Kentucky's House of Representatives, after two hours of debate, last week voted 57 to 40 to rescind its 1972 approval of the constitutional amendment as anti-ERA forces cheered in the gallery.

The rescission fight in the Kentucky legislature is one of nine such battles now under way across the U.S. according to the national Stop ERA Committee, Thirty-four (including Kentucky) of the 38 states necessary for ratification by the March 1979 deadline, have approved the amendment, which would make equality for women a constitutional right. Two of the 34 states, Nebraska and Tennessee, have voted to rescind their approval. Six-teen states have voted against ratification.

The rescission movement has raised legal questions— in Kentucky and elsewhere. ERA proponents hold that a state may not rescind ratifica-tion of a constitutional amendment after it has been approved, and during the Kentucky House debate, pro-ERA speakers cited a 1937 state court ruling to prove it.

Several anti-ERA sources here conceded that the legal implications are cloudy, say ing Congress or the U.S. Su-preme Court would have to decide whether rescission is legal, since federal law and the courts apparently have not settled the question.

The battle to overturn ERA ratification in Kentucky began only weeks after the amendment was approved in 1972. The legislature, meeting on other matters in a special five-day summer session, had voted for the ERA with little fanfare and almost no organized opposition

"The $30,000 should permit gates and detection sensitiz-ing equuipment and some de-tection strips or plates, al-though not enough for the whole collection," he said.

The biggest factor is not the permanent losses, but the high incidence of temporary removal of books whether de-liberate or accidental.

"We are unable to account for a substantial temporary loss of material," he said. The study earlier this year showed the highest theft oc-currence — 19 per cent — was in the saction dealing with sexrelations and porwith birth control, courtship and free love had a loss rate of Stack collections number nearly 600,000.

The theft rate may indicate that sexual relations books are considered most valuable by students, but the library staff's views may differ and the reference collection where, for example, the loss of one encyclopedia may mean purchase of a whole new set — may get first aftention, said Halliwell.

The Bridge Expert

More often than not, the practice of deceptive play produces winning results when it is applied by de-clarer, since a defender, by a deceptive play, might easily mislead partner as to the true state of affairs. Nevertheless, many situations arise where a defender deliberately (and correctly) runs the risk of misleading partner to gain a desired result, knowing that his deceptive play is almost certain to lead declarer astray. The latter point is the theme of today's deal.

West's opening spade lead was taken by East's king, after which East cashed the spade ace. To trick three East led the eight of diamonds!

the six, dummy's nine captured the trick.

There was no doubt in declarer's mind that East's eight of diamonds was a singleton. Why else (declarer asked himself) would East be leading a diamond into the jaws of dummy's A-K-J-9?

So, at trick four, declarer led a trump off dummy and took the trick with his ace. To trick five he cashed the trump king — and West discarded a spade. Declarer then conceded two tricks to East's jack and queen of trumps. And so and queen of trumps. And so he went down one, having been victimized by East's diabeen victimized by East's dia-mond lead at trick three.

Suppose that East had made the normal play of a spade at trick three. Declarer would have won the trick with his queen, after which he would have cashed the ace of trumps. Then he would have entered dummy via a club or a diamond to lead dummy's remaining trump. When East a diamond to lead dummy's remaining trump. When East would play low, South would insert his nine, to guard against East's possession of the Q-J-x-x. With the nine winning, it would become a routine matter to cash the trump king, felling East's jack. East's queen of trumps would now be the defenders' only winner.

But when East returned a diamond at trick three, declarer felt that he couldn't af-ford to make the "safety play" in the trump suit. If he did, and West happened to have been dealt either the queen or jack, West would re-turn a diamond for East to ruff. So, once again, deception When West followed suit with had paid a dividend.

Since no galls form on chry-santhemum leaves, the grubs move freely between the leaf tissues, safe from birds, pre-dators, and sprays, feasting on the leaf cells until the foliage

By responding to the irrita-tion caused by the grub's pre-sence, the oak and the rose prevent defoliation, thereby preserving their food manufacturing parts and their ability to persist.

Oak apples are found on twigs, and young growth, round and green, but not mossy in appearance. On oak Gall, small round red galls pose.

In local gardens, a gall sim ilar to the oak apple is found on azaleas. Some gardeners have reported planting the galls in the hope of growing a new azalea, thinking they were some kind of a fruit containing seed.

While the plants concerned use up a quantity of valuable material in making the galls material in making the galls, it is not a wasted effort because the foliage and other important organs are preserved and the health of the plants maintained.

If you find some of these mossy pincushions on your roses, or apple-like galls on your azaleas, cut off the shoot just below the swelling. Slice the gall in half and study its structure; you will find it interesting.

OTTAWAT(CP) - Drastic new provisions for the imprisonment of cold-blooded killers and violent offenders will be given first reading in the Commons today along with a bill to abolish capital punishment.

Capital punishment will be replaced by lengthy prison sentences offering little likelihood of parole for many years. Parole provisions for all prisoners, especially those with a history of violent or sexual offences, are to be tightened.

Meanwhile, shotguns and rifles will be brought under restrictive new licensing provisions aimed at discouraging their ownership by any but the most avid of hunters, or by those who live close to nature and must have them.

It is expected the firearms provisions will force whole-sales and retailers to keep detailed records of sale of weapons and ammunition.

They, and private gun owners, will be open to criminal charges and civil suits if careless storage of weapons leads to their use by another person in a violent crime.

ing equuipment and some de-tection strips or plates, al-though not enough for the whole collection," he said.

The biggest factor is not the permanent losses, but the removal of books whether de liberate or accidental.

"We are unable to account for a substantial temporary loss of material," he said. The study earlier this year showed the highest theft oc-currence — 19 per cent — was in the staction dealing with sex-

The theft rate may indicate that sexual relations books are considered most valuable by students, but the library staff's views may differ and the reference collection where, for example, the loss of one encyclopedia may mean purchase of a whole newset — may get first attention, said Halliwell.
